Harry Reid [chairman of the subcommittee] presiding. Present: Senator Reid. Opening Statement Of Hon. Harry Reid, U.S. Senator From The State Of Nevada Senator Reid. The hearing will come to order. We re here today to discuss the Toxic Substances Control Act, the quiet environmental statute that doesn't generally receive the attention that other environmental issues do. In some respects, its silence is odd because TSCA gives EPA significant authority and because many of the original intentions behind TSCA are somewhat radical and seem oddly contemporary. As many people now recognize, TSCA was really our first pollution prevention statute. This statute's fundamental concept is preventive, going back to the source - that is, to the manufacturers and processors of chemicals - to prevent and control downstream hazards. This is particularly true to the new chemical program which required the EPA to consider the potential health and environmental effects of chemicals before they're even manufactured. This preventive approach makes sense from the standpoint of protecting our health and getting the most protection that we can for the dollars we spend. It's an approach we've been returning to as we've crafted bills reauthorizing other environmental statutes like the Safe Drinking Water Act and the Clean Water Act, which acknowledged the importance of protecting water...
